ROUMANIANS HAVE AGAIN CROSSED THE DANUBE INTO BULGARIA AND EFFORTS OF VON MACKENSEN TO HOLD THEM FAILS.

British Forces Operating on East Bank of the Struma on Macedonian Front Have Also Pushed Back the Bulgars — Lull Continues on Somme Front, Where There Has Been No Activity on the Entire French Battle Line — Berlin News Teutons Have Made Progress on Entire Eastern Transylvania Front and Also Gained Ground Near Orsova — Four Consecutive Counter Attacks by Germans in an Effort to Recapture Lost Ground in Galicia Failed, According to Petrograd.

A fresh Roumanian expedition is said to have crossed the Danube river into Bulgaria, according to a message received in London by wireless from Rome. Field Marshal von Mackensen, the German commander, is said to have sent troops to attack the Roumanian forces, but without success.

British forces operating on the east bank of the Struma river on the Macedonian front have pressed the Bulgarians further back, London announces, saying that several villages have been occupied.

Berlin announces that the Teutonic troops have made progress on the entire eastern Transylvania front. Ground has also been gained by the Germans near Orsova.

German troops Friday made four consecutive counter attacks against the Russians in an effort to recapture the lost ground in Galicia, but Petrograd declares that they were each time repelled with heavy losses.

French troops on the Macedonian front have joined in the offensive with the British there. The Paris war office reports the occupation by the French of the town of German, on lake Presba.

The lull continues on the Somme front, today's Paris statements said. Friday night passed quietly on the entire French battle line. The Russo-Roumanian offensive in Dobrudja is being successfully pressed. Petrograd announces the capture of two towns on this front and a ridge connecting them.

J. M. PARKER PROGRESSIVE NOMINEE

SCORES REPUBLICANS AND SAYS THE DEMOCRATS APPROPRIATED ALL PROGRESSIVE IDEAS.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 7.—John M. Parker, progressive nominee for vice president, in opening his campaign tour here today, criticized the Adams eight hour law and the manner of its enactment, denounced the "betrayal" of the progressive party by its leaders at Chicago last June, scored the professional politician and labor agitator and made a plea for maintenance of the progressive party organization and its principles. Mr. Parker arraigned both republicans and democrats for their alleged "machine" methods and policies of government, but was more severe in his criticism of the republican party which he branded as the "party of special privileges."

He also reiterated his reasons, given in a recent statement, why he would work against Chas. E. Hughes, republican candidate for president, but he did not urge the reelection of President Wilson. His opposition was rather to the parties they represented than to the candidates themselves. Mr. Parker argued for the elimination from politics and national affairs of sectionalism or agitation of sectionalism, and deplored the "harping" by politicians upon hyphenated Americanism and as creating unrest and discord in the nation's life.

He said in part: "The progressive party in 1912 made the people of the nation begin to think."

"It was the first political party of all time which put human welfare above the dollar, and the only party which has ever dared make the struggle for right above the power of might."

"Its demand for the regional bank and removal of the power from Wall Street, or any other interest to control the financial policy of this country, has been enacted into law, and today the wheat, corn, oats, cotton, cane, rice and live stock of our farmers largely represent the best class of security."

"Capital for years held labor under servile control, and thus amassed vast fortunes. Today labor has capital terrorized, and by the power of the strike may cause untold suffering and widespread disaster, by the destruction of the edifice which gives capital profitable investment, and labor useful employment, a living and competency."

"I believe in organization of labor as strongly as I believe in the organization of capital, and at the same time would vigorously oppose unfairness on the part of either."

"The professional politician and the professional labor agitator can both be easily spared without loss. They represent the drones who are large consumers and produce nothing."

"The democratic party, through its president, announces with pride that it is progressive and has enacted into law most of the essentials for which we progressives have steadfastly fought. This statement emphasizes

On the other hand, it was said that he intervened after both sides had made it plain that they were ready for a strike.
